Timeline: Advocacy for a Fifth World Conference on Women, 2001 — onward

2001 – Gatherings in Northern California

To discuss and form the Millionth Circle Initiative, inspired by The Millionth Circle: How to Change Ourselves and The World (Jean Shinoda Bolen, 1999). MC Vision: A proliferation of circles with a spiritual center becomes a worldwide healing force by bringing feminine values of relationship, nurturing, and interdependency into a global culture in which hierarchy, conflict and competition, power over others and exploitation of the earth’s resources are dominant values. Premise that a tipping point in culture and history will come about when a critical number of women’s circles with a spiritual center are formed: this is the metaphoric “millionth circle.” Draws upon morphic field theory and the allegory of “The Hundredth Monkey” (http://www.millionthcircle.org). MC initially convened by Peggy Sebera (California), Elinore Detiger (Costa Rica & the Netherlands) and Elly Pradervand (Geneva: Women’s World Summit Foundation). UN NGO involvement at its inception included Pathways to Peace (Avon Mattison) and Ann Smith (then ED of Global Education Associates).

2002 — Millionth Circle conveners in New York for UN Commission on the Status of Women followed by a retreat at Deer Hill conference grounds which brought MC together with many women involved with UN NGOs.

Learned that there would not only not be another (after Beijing 1995) women’s world conference in 2005, but there were no plans to ever hold another one.” Seeds of activism for what became 5WCW began here. Going to parallel events was “appalling and inspiring:” Learning about the terrible experiences of abuse and neglect that women and girls are subject to—trafficking was just one appalling example of many, and hearing what women were doing that is making a difference, some of whom had once been victims—was inspiring. A significant workshop was given by women from Sierra Leone, who had been through the civil wars there and worked toward peace. While they did not mention “circle”, they spoke about meeting together and staying in touch when some had to leave the country, returning to participate in the successful peace negotiations that had come about because Security Council Resolution #1325 had been evoked.
2003 — World Social Forum in Port Allegre, Brazil inspires initial Millionth Circle activism for a 5WWC in Brazil. (http://www.5wwc.org/origins/moving_forward.html) Populist president had just been elected, announced cabinet level appointment of feminist to head a department on women.

First 5WWC paper petition began at the Gather the Women Congress in San Francisco taken to UN and presented to Secretary General Annan through Assistant SG for Women’s Issues by Angela Weber (Brazil).
